Important advice

- Check the payment schedule of your PGL - if your course is slightly longer than one calendar year you may receive some PGL payments after the course has finished.
- If you have any student loan arrears, or you were ever deemed 'unfit' to receive student finance, you will not be eligible to apply.
- Repeating years /not completing the course and starting another will usually not be funded, even if you did not originally request or receive the full amount on a prior year/course.
- Temporary and permanent withdrawals may result in an overpayment of loan which will need to be paid back immediately to Student Finance England.
- Universities tuition fee payment policies may not match the PGL payments. Some universities want at least 50% of the tuition fees paid up front.
- If you are receiving means-tested welfare benefits a PGL may affect your entitlement.
- You must be studying the full credits of the masters course to qualify for a loan. If you intend to use any credits gained from a previous course you will lose your eligibility for the loan.

Checklist

- Make sure you have picked the right course and right university - you only get one chance to receive PGL funding.
- Plan your budget - will the PGL be enough to cover your tuition fees and essential living costs?
- Look at all the other sources of postgraduate funding - remember you can apply for these as well as your PGL.
- Check your university's tuition fee charging policy and make sure you can meet it before you start the course.
- Check when your PGL payments will be made - does it fit with your budgeting plans?
- Make sure you complete all the requirements to become fully registered on your course, e.g. providing qualification certificates to the university or your PGL cannot be paid to you.
